

What makes us different? We are Hospice Specialists

Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice has been helping families through some of the most difficult times of their lives since 1980. One of the ways we differ from other providers is that our hospice was founded out of the need of a family, the Quinlans, to give back to a community that had done so much to support them. The Quinlans, Julia and Joseph, were pioneers in an era where hospice was rarely utilized...especially in Sussex County. They started Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice in honor of their daughter, not to make money, or to cash-in on an increasingly aging population, but to make a difference in the lives of people suffering from life-limiting illness. They believed in the cause so much, they used their own money, as seed money to start the hospice. Julia Quinlan, co-founder and President of the Board, still has a very active role at the not-for-profit organization.

What else makes us different? We are hospice specialists. Specialist... an organization of highly skilled people who concentrate primarily on hospice care. We provide

"We are so grateful to have had the wonderful quality of care, understanding and compassion. The information and support that was given, was truly a blessing."

personal support and care that is different from standard medical care as we do not concentrate on specific illness, but rather address the entire patient, their caregivers and family members.

Our medical directors specialize in oncology, geriatrics, family medicine and hospice. Dr. Joseph Cirello, was recently granted the Hospice Medical Director Certified credential by the Hospice Medical Director Certification Board. There are currently only 800

Certified Hospice Medical Directors across the country.

Our nursing staff includes certified hospice and palliative care nurses.

This specialized training means that we put the emphasis on controlling pain and symptoms through the most advanced techniques available. It also means that we provide emotional and spiritual support tailored to the needs of the patient and their entire family.

Each patient is different. We create a specialized treatment plan to meet the needs of each person including integrative therapy. Furthermore, the hospice specialist's treatments are not just for the patient, but are a complete "unit of care" for the entire family.

We expand our care to encompass the mind and spirit as well as the body by integrating special therapies with the best in medical care.

Sue Dougherty, Volunteer Coordinator (l) and Cecelia Clayton, Executive Director (r) congratulate Mary Jane Purdy on her big win.

Half for Hospice raffle winner!

The Friends of Hospice held a progressive 50/50 raffle in 2017. Raffle tickets were $5 with a maximum of 4,000 sold. The winning ticket was drawn on December 29, at the Karen Ann Quinlan Administrative office and the winner was Mary Jane Purdy of Hackettstown. Purdy won $9,212.50 before taxes. Purdy has been a patient care volunteer with the hospice since 2008. The total amount raised during the year-long raffle was $18,425. The raffle was such a success the Friends of Hospice will repeat the event in 2018! Don't miss your chance to win big!

High Tea for Hospice

On February 23, 2018, the Friends of Hospice will host their Annual High Tea at the beautiful Lake Mohawk Country Club's Ball Room.

Our guests will enjoy an array of scones, sandwiches and tea while they are entertained by Harpist Sherry Lenox.

There will be a fantastic silent auction featuring many lovely items and prizes.

For over three decades this dedicated group has sponsored many events to raise funds to support the Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice. As a not-for-profit organization we depend on the community for support to enable our nurses, aides and volunteers to continue to give the professional and compassionate care and support to patients, families and neighbors when they are in need of the special care we offer.

I look forward to enjoying the day with you. This year the event coincides with my birthday. Come and help me celebrate my special 91st. Reservations are available online at KarenAnn-QuinlanHospice.org/HighTea or by calling 973-383-0115.

Poinsettia donation helps to spread holiday cheer

The holiday season for most of us is a joyous time; but for hospice patients and families it can be more challenging than usual. Joan and Larry Bono of Highland Lakes have donated fresh and colorful poinsettias to Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice for more than 15-years. It is their way to help brighten the hearts and minds of hospice patients and families for the holidays.

Helen Morgan School Bulldog Run raises $2,713 for Bereavement Center

A special thanks to teacher Cindy Reigstad, guidance counselors, faculty and students at Helen Morgan school for donating proceeds from their annual mini-marathon Bull Dog Run. All fourth and fifth grade students participate in the run and ask family and friends to sponsor them. Julia Quinlan, co-founder and President of Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice and Diana Sebzda, Director of Bereavement at the Joseph T. Quinlan Bereavement Center were on hand to thank the students. The donation will benefit programs at the Bereavement Center.

On January 1, 2018, members of the Blue Knights Chapter IX motorcycle club rang in the new year by riding out in the annual Chilly Chili Run to benefit Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice.

Last year the Blue Knights donated more than $11,000 to the Hospice from the 2017 run. The donation was used to provide medical, emotional and spiritual support to people facing terminal illness. Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice makes certain that their remaining days can be lived as fully as possible.

We would like to thank the Knights for helping us maintain this mission.

Reflections

Dunkin' Donuts. Actually Dunkin' Donuts Munchkins - the variety 60 pack to be precise. More precisely, the jelly munchkins in the 60 pack Dunkin' Donut variety. Do you know which ones I'm talking about?

Well, a kind saboteur of everyone's "diet" brought this box to the office. With joyful anticipation I scrounged to find a morsel with the tell-tale bit of jelly. Cup of coffee in hand I popped that delicate bit of dough into my mouth (yes, the whole thing), waiting for the sweet sugary taste of jelly to be released, and, guess what, NO JELLY!! It was empty, barely a taste. A wave of disappointment came over me. No jelly. Bummer. My face fell, smile faded. Not a big deal, right - just grab another. But, obstinate being that I am, I didn't. I went to my desk, pondering the meaning of an "empty" jelly donut, and lo and behold, had a thought!!

How often do we anticipate one outcome and then get another? We think we know what is going to happen but something else does. How do we deal or cope with that? On this morning my maturity level was way up there (!) so I did what came naturally - I pouted and sulked. "Darn donuts, can't depend on anything." But in reality, did I need those extra calories the jelly would have given me? No. Did some evil force intentionally set out to fool me (and me alone) and leave the jelly out? Was it a big ploy to ruin my day? Should I run out to the store and register a complaint about the inefficiency of the Dunkin Donuts Munchkin Jelly Stuffers?? Well don't be ridiculous, of course not. It was just one of those things that happen.

Very often what we think will happen doesn't; what we anticipate doesn't come to fruition. Something goes awry. So, what to do? Do we stop trying, stop reaching for what we want or need? Or do we give it another go-round? Wouldn't it be better to look for a positive in the whole experience rather than jump to the conclusion that the world is out to get us, to make us miserable, to disappoint us and only us? There are so many times when we do just that. We declare that because at the one time we wanted or needed something or someone, and they weren't there for us, they never were and never will be. Or we determine that we aren't good enough, worthy enough, to get what we need and so stop trying. We don't "reach in" and try again. We go off and pout, sulk, beat up on ourselves and dismiss others. Such a shame, because the truth is, there are so many more times when we do get exactly what we need - it is just our anticipation that is off course. But we forget those times. Unfortunately, we only recognize this in retrospect - if we take the time to examine it.

A wise man, Socrates, once said: "An unexamined life is a life not worth living." And history has taught us: "If we don't learn from our mistakes, we are bound to repeat them." Is it worth it to us to examine our lives and see where we stand? Or do we spend our time examining other's lives instead of our own and see them in that negative light? Do we try to see the mistakes we've made and then set out to not repeat them? Or do we examine our mistakes and judge ourselves as bad, worthless, a failure?

It is important to realize the power we have to define our words and therefore our beliefs. Mistakes can be "bad" or they can be seen as an opportunity to become more, better, polished, beautiful. Picture a child learning to ride a two-wheeler...oops, leaned too far to the left, a mistake, and down he goes to the pavement. Now what - declare failure, defeat and never get on again? No, with encouragement from self and others, learning takes place. A mistake, don't lean too far, and off he goes, riding straight and fast. A success!! As we get older we make different types of mistakes and different learnings result. A word spoken in haste teaches us to be more careful and attentive. A disagreement or argument born out of ego, a need to be "right" when we are wrong, teaches us how to say "I'm sorry." An expectation of another when they are unable to live up to it teaches us to be more understanding. Journeying with another in grief teaches us how to be empathetic. Another's pain can be the catalyst to creating a gentleness in us. Mistakes we or others make are bright opportunities for growth and learning. To achieve this we must examine it. We must take the time to sit back and see the whole moving picture, not the snapshot. We are never "done," never finished, never locked into time standing still. We need the moments of anticipation, of expectations, of looking forward. But we also need the moments of examination, of looking back, of realization of what is.

So, what the heck, grab the jelly donut - but if there isn't any jelly, oh well, you just saved yourself some calories!! Maybe next time there will be so much jelly that it's going to squirt out the other side and fall on your shirt and leave a mark for the rest of the day!!!

Isn't life full of wonderful surprises?!

Join our Book Club!

Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice in association with Black Dog Book of Newton, NJ is excited to announce the first book selection in our newly formed book club, “The Four Things That Matter Most - A Book About Living,” by Ira Byock, M.D.

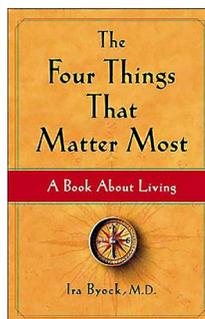

Four simple phrases — “Please forgive me,” “I forgive you,” “Thank you,” and “I love you” — carry enormous power. In many ways, they contain the most powerful words in our language. These four phrases provide us with a clear path to emotional wellness; they guide us through the thickets of interpersonal difficulties to a conscious way of living that is full of integrity and grace.

In “The Four Things That Matter Most,” Dr. Ira Byock, an international leader in palliative care, teaches us how to practice these life-affirming words in our day-to-day lives.

The book club is open to anyone in the community. Registration is required and can be done at: KarenAnnQuinlanHospice.org/BookClub or by calling 973-383-0115 ext. 145. The book can be purchased at Black Dog Books. Please call 201-230-3900, to secure your copy. There is no cost to join the club. Once registered you will be emailed or mailed additional information about the club.

Our first meeting to discuss “The Four Things That Matter Most,” will be held on Sunday, April 29 from 12:30 - 2:30 at Black Dog Books, located on 188 Spring Street in Newton. Light refreshments will be available for purchase from Between the Bread, located next door.

At the meeting we will discuss the book so be sure to mark any interesting passages you might want to discuss. There will also be discussion questions and book related activities. We will also announce the next book club selection and meeting time.

Levine elected to NJSNA Board

The New Jersey State Nurses Association welcomed a new vice president and secretary to its Board of Directors at a swearing in ceremony.

Mary Ellen Levine, a Hopatcong resident, was elected to the role of vice president. She serves as a hospice nurse at Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice in Newton and an adjunct professor at Caldwell University.

"It is my goal to promote organization membership and professional involvement with regards to the direction of nursing practice and health care policy," said Levine. "I look forward to serving during this exciting time and having an impact on all New Jersey nurses, the practice of nursing and patient care."

NJSNA, which was established in 1901, is a constituent member of the American Nurses Association. The New Jersey State Nurses Association (NJSNA) represents the interests of 125,000 registered nurses and advanced practice nurses as an advocate for the nursing profession. NJSNA's lobbying arm continues to protect the nursing profession through legislative victories. Its nonprofit foundation, Institute for Nursing, helps nurses further their careers by providing continuing education, scholarships and research grants in addition to invaluable networking opportunities. For more information, nurses can visit njsna.org or contact NJSNA at njsna@njsna.

Hospice selected as "Hello" game host site

Karen Ann Quinlan Hospice has been selected by the Hospice Foundation of America (HFA) as one of the 50 communities nationwide to host the "Hello Game." This 14-month community outreach and research project will engage African American and other underserved populations in advance care planning activities and conversations using Common Practice's Hello game.

The Hello game has been found to stimulate substantive, enjoyable and meaningful end-of-life discussions among participants and has a 70% success rate in encouraging participants to perform additional advance care planning behaviors. However, the results are mostly comprised of Caucasian and South Asian Indian demographics. This project aims to understand the advance care planning needs of underserved populations and make significant contributions to the field to improve the end-of-life care those populations receive.

HFA is grateful to the John and Wauna Harman Foundation for its commitment to addressing end-of-life care needs in the U.S.
